About Dr. Priya Lalvania

Dr. Priya Lalvani is a Professor of Disability Studies & Inclusive Education at Montclair State University. She is the coordinator for the Graduate Programs in Inclusive Education. She holds a Ph.D. in Developmental Psychology. Her research is focused on examining the experiences of individuals with disabilities and their families within sociopolitical contexts. Through it, she seeks to confront ableism in society and to problematize the segregation of students with disabilities in schools. She is the co-author of the book: Undoing Ableism: Teaching About Disability in K-12 Classrooms and the editor of: Constructing the (M)other: Narratives of Disability, Motherhood, and the Politics of Normal.
